

John Mason International Movers awarded "Great Place to Work" Certification

John Mason International, a global leader in international removal services, has proudly joined the distinguished list of companies to be recognised as a Great Place to Work.

John Mason International Movers is thrilled to announce it has been awarded with the "Great Place to Work" recognition. This esteemed accolade underlines the organisation's steadfast dedication to nurturing an inclusive, supportive, and empowering workplace culture.

Remarkably, John Mason International is the only international moving firm to have earned this esteemed certification, signifying an unparalleled achievement in the sector.

A staggering 90% of John Mason International's workforce stated that the firm stands out as a "Great Place to Work." Such an overwhelming positive response is a testament to the company's commitment to ensuring every member feels valued, heard, and inspired to give their best.

The "Great Place to Work" certification is awarded based on extensive employee feedback and a comprehensive assessment of workplace dynamics. Factors such as trust in leadership, camaraderie among peers, and the overall work atmosphere play pivotal roles in the evaluation. For John Mason International to achieve this certification reflects the positive and productive environment they have cultivated over the years.

Simon Hood, Executive Director at John Mason International, expressed his joy, stating: "This isn't just a title; it encapsulates the warm, supportive, and respectful environment we've cultivated. Our achievement highlights the unity, respect, and mutual support that underpin our company ethos. We are immensely proud and humbled by this recognition and owe it to our hardworking team. Over recent years, several progressive policies have been rolled out, encompassing flexible work schedules, profit-sharing schemes for employees, regular salary revisions based on the cost of living, an array of training and educational avenues, and unwavering support during personal challenges. Our employees are more than teammates; they're family."

Established over 138 years ago, John Mason International has consistently been at the forefront of international removals, offering unparalleled service to countless families and businesses worldwide. This latest "Great Place to Work" certification is not just an acknowledgement of their service quality, but also an endorsement of their employee-first philosophy.

Liam Fairbrother, Import Co-Ordinator, who joined the company in 2022 shared his personal experience: "I was initially hesitant upon joining, having no prior exposure to logistics. However, the welcoming atmosphere was evident from day one. I've faced personal challenges while here, requiring occasional time off, but the unrelenting support from the John Mason family has been invaluable. It's more than a job; it's a lifelong career and a second family."

This certification reaffirms the company's mission of not just being a leader in the industry, but also an exemplary employer, setting benchmarks for workplace excellence.
